TUICU, along with the credit union movement in general, is gearing up to play a full role in delivering financial services to the community. This is particularly important with the financial services sector currently compromised with prominent banks (Ulster Bank, Bank of Ireland, KBC Bank) either reducing their operations or exiting the Irish market entirely.

The public sector, specifically the education sector, is pivotal to TUICU success as its members are predominately drawn from within the sector. The education sector has shown itself to be resolute in the face of the ongoing Covid 19 pandemic, and members have played a vital role in maintaining educational services for the community.

The TUICU continues to explore opportunities to expand its business model and enhance its digital offering to members. The credit union will release an expanded range of options via the credit union mobile app in the months ahead. Such developments will make it much easier to apply for a loan, sign loan documentation, make debit card payments, all from a mobile phone in the palm of their hands.

Chief Executive Officer Paul Roche explains, "TUICU is actively working to develop a financial strategy program that will significantly assist members in planning for their financial needs. The credit union's goal to introduce a current account facility for its members, and work will commence shortly on the initiative with the all-approving sanction of the Central Bank of Ireland.

"The TUICU is ideally placed to meet and service the needs of its members and the broader education sector. The TUICU is acknowledged as one of the strongest performing and technologically advanced credit unions in the country. If you are employed within the second level or third level education sector, we will be happy to facilitate credit and accommodate your financial needs."

This is the second year that the TUICU has been recognised for its outstanding service to members with the Excellence in providing financial services within the Education Sector Award. Commenting Roche said: "We are delighted to receive the award for 2021 and look forward to continuing our work assisting the education sector and its members with their financial needs."
